Progress

In Chapter 2 of our Canyon Tunnel Project, we enter the turn-under period, a critical phase that sets the foundation for everything to come. This window of time allows our team to safely stage the construction site and yard, mobilize crews, and bring in specialized tunneling equipment needed for the work ahead.

With site access established and logistics in place, we're preparing for the next major milestone: nearly two miles of tunneling through challenging terrain. While much of this work happens before tunneling begins, it's essential to keeping the project efficient, safe, and on schedule.
